International relations theory is the study of international relations (IR) from a theoretical perspective. It attempts to provide a conceptual framework upon which international relations can be analyzed. Ole Holsti describes international relations theories as acting like pairs of coloured sunglasses that allow the wearer to see only salient events relevant to the theory; e.g., an adherent ...

This is really good. But I also think there's a reason our base cultural values are used as a tiebreaker "they're designed to minimize the average actual distaste the average person has with the status quo (You can't have a cultural norm if too many people object to it too strongly, it ends up changing).
