Ray Solomonoff's theory of universal inductive inference is a theory of prediction based on logical observations, such as predicting the next symbol based upon a given series of symbols. The only assumption that the theory makes is that the environment follows some unknown but computable probability distribution. It is a mathematical formalization of Occam's razor and the Principle of Multiple ...

The ability to generate pseudorandom numbers is important for simulating events, estimating probabilities and other quantities, making randomized assignments or selections, and numerically testing symbolic results. Such applications may require uniformly distributed numbers, nonuniformly distributed numbers, elements sampled with replacement, or elements sampled without replacement.

Note: Some investigators prefer the term "persistent contrails" to "chemtrails" arguing that all jet trails are in fact chemical trails, since even non-persistent contrails are the condensation effect of water vapour on jet exhaust chemicals. The key difference therefore is the nature of the chemicals which constitute the basis of the trails.
